

WHAT HAPPENED IN CHICAGO TODAY

Bomb placed in front of house of Peter Nuccio, 445 W. Oak street. Smothered by sand. Slight explosion. $10 damage. Nuccio said to have received Black Hand letters.

Passengers on Maywood car objected to paying two fares. Car wrecked.

Once again. How about closing Freiberg's?

Inspector Hunt has dropped bribery cases against the miserly persons who offered him a paltry $100.

"I think that if low wages, intemperance and public dance halls could be eliminated we would all be happier."—Municipal Judge Goodnow. He advises as a cure "good churches, good schools and parents with brains." Why not better wages for the department store girls, who have no chance to attend "good schools," and have no place to go for amusement, but the public dance halls.

The federal grand jury is to investigate charges of perjury involved in certain "contradictory statements" made by witnesses before the Lorimer committee.

Inspector Spurn-a-Hundred Hunt says a Chicago murder cannot be purchased for $7, as stated by S. S. McClure, magazine man. Hunt says he never knew of a murder being bought for any price.

Kaid Belton, ex-English army officer, injured in aeroplane fall at Pullman. Machine wrecked.

Louis Ronbeck, driving hack at funeral of John Sallo, who lived at 2123 Wentworth, refused to let 5 men ride in vehicle. Men fired at him. Missed, but injured horse. All escaped.

Mrs. Elizabeth Fort, 2735 S. Michigan, robbed of purse containing $25 by man as she was entering her home.

W. D. Mitchell, Fithian, Ill., farmer, told police he had been swindled out of $300 by three men who met him in Northwestern station and induced him to bet on horse race.

Any girl can starve to death on $6 a week.

Government attorneys now understand how little they understood federal judges when they thought they were going to force Beef Trust to trial last Monday.

J. Ogden Armour has donated $5,000 for education of farmer boys. Ogden's a great little philanthropist. Also some beef packer. But he hasn't been tried yet.

"Packers Buy Generously." Headline in Tribune. Jesso! But that's not the way they sell.

Scalpers are selling $5 seats for grand opera at $7—a full week's wages in a big store.

Willie Hearst papers have moved into the chop suey joint.

Go to the Land Show, oh ye homeseekers! And the Union and Southern Pacific railroads will tell you where to buy land—near their railroads.

Dr. George O'Connell was the reputable citizen who headed that West Side delegation of business men who protested against the